

BRAZILIAN EMBASSY

THE STORY

HS Projects is delighted to present What separates us, a group exhibition by four Brazilian artists, Tonico Lemos Aued, Adriano Costa, Rodrigo Matheus and Matheus Rocha Pitta, funded by Arts Council England at Sala Brasil, the Embassy of Brazil in London, from 20 May – 2 July 2016. What separates us examines ideas of value systems and exchange mechanisms from cultural, social and economic perspectives. The exhibition explores ideas of international trade, travel and mobility, whilst examining the 'real value' of art and the system in which it is made and validated.

What separates us is located in the Sala Brasil, the former ticket hall for the Oceanic Steam Navigation Company, the Titanic ship operator, now home to the Embassy of Brazil in London. The works enter into a dialogue with the Sala Brasil's historic ties with shipping and international trade, as well as how new emerging markets and decreasing trade restrictions have been instrumental to exchanges within the complex circuits of trade. The exhibition questions value systems, relationships with commodities, products and exchange mechanisms echoing transatlantic enterprises dating from the sixteenth century to current international interest in Brazil as a commercial partner. As part of this debate the exhibition examines the notion of art as a commodity, capable of being marketable, sellable and collectible.
